

MUSICAL CIRCLES

Proudly Presents

The Diatonics Doodle At The Musical Drawing Classes

It's the first day of the Christmas holidays which means shopping time, games, movies, the library, and more! But things take an unexpected turn, because – strangely enough – it's at the ice cream shop that it all happens. Or would it be the poster over there on the window that sparks enough curiosity to result in twelve days of doodling and drawing?

January is a long time to wait, but the wait is worth it. It's all taught by a lady who knows not only about art but also music! And what exactly is the connection between art and music, anyway? Maybe it's something to do with the alphabet, but how many alphabets are there?

Before they know it, it's time to learn the art of Writing. Why? It's not exactly clear, but they need to practise their Letters and Handwriting, not to mention something called "Calligraphy"! And how can doodling lead to the formation of signatures? As if this isn't enough – it works out that a handful of syllables and numbers are important, too. Could it be that certain shapes hold the key to some very interesting music symbols?

This is a learning journey with a difference. There's so much to discover, and don't forget those music instruments because you'll need to use your eyes and ears. Join these Diatonics as they enter "Oodles of Doodles" – it's the door to a whole world of artistry!
